

The Map of the Edo Era and the Present Era

A map of the Fukahori district in the Edo era (1861) and in the present are lined up next to each other. You can see from the map that the crescent-shaped streets which were created along the coastline before the Edo period and the waterways which spread from the mountains to the ocean, still remain today.

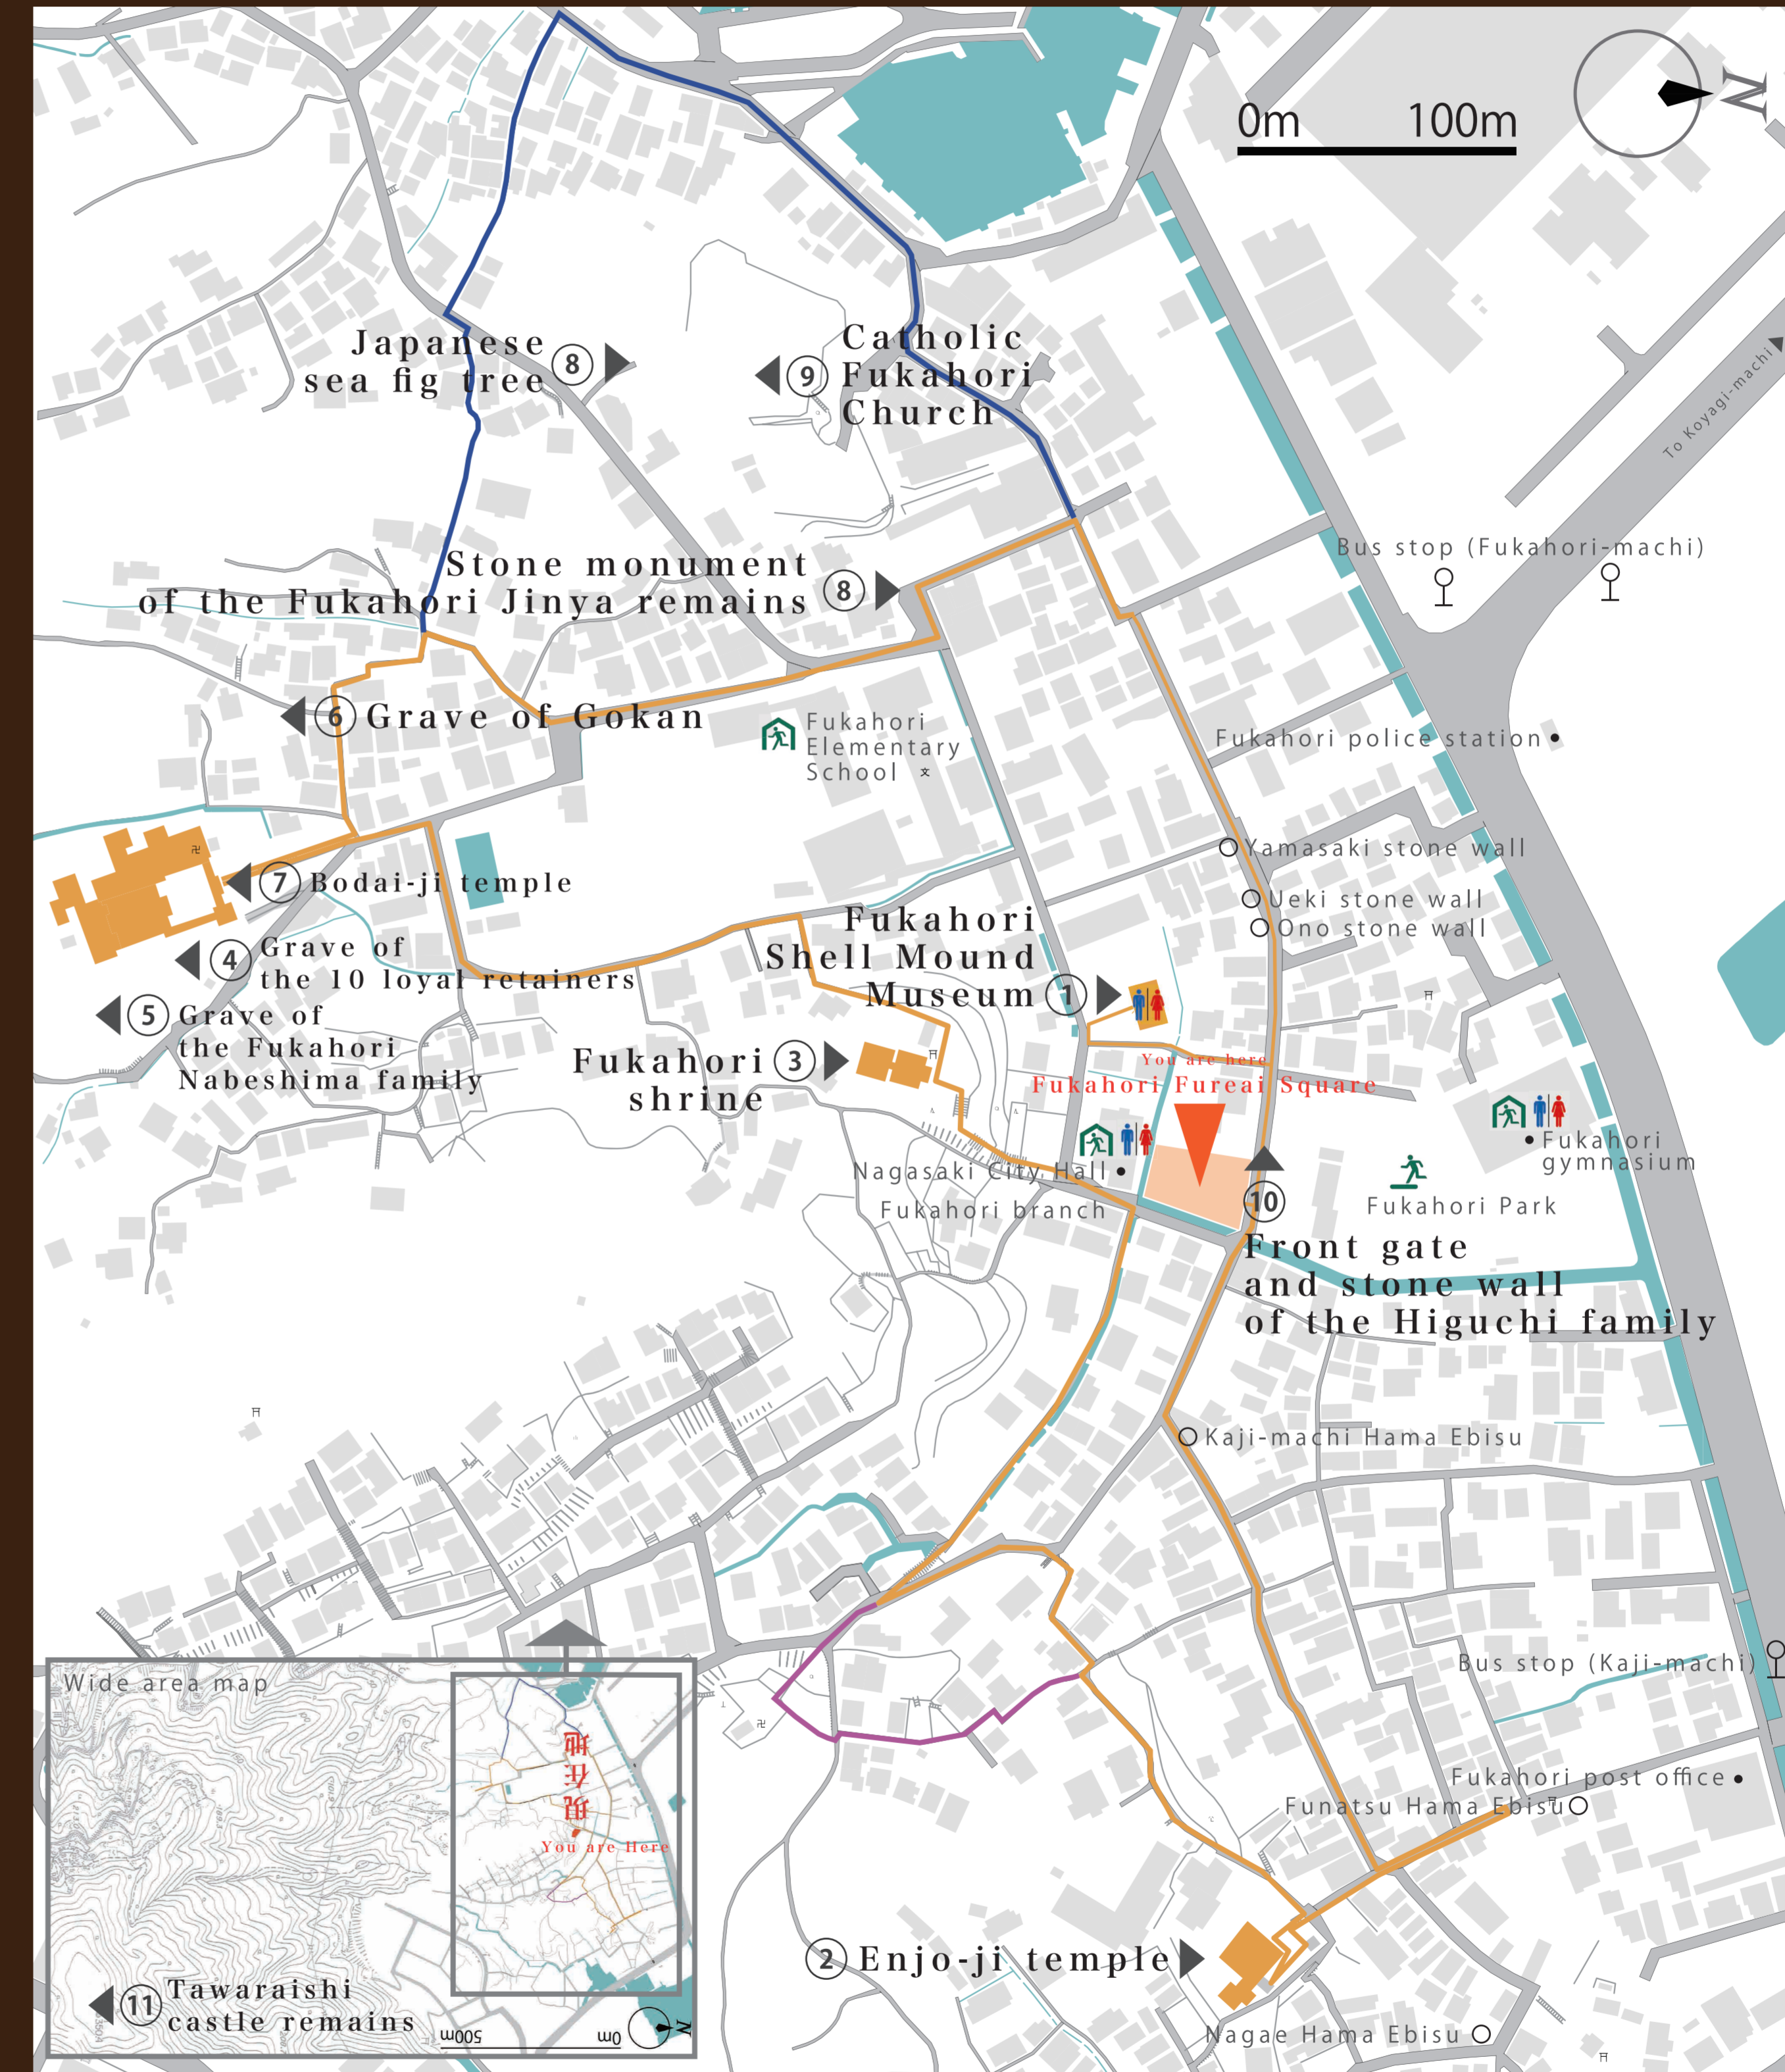

● A map of Honmura, Fukahori territory

(“Sonogi district Fukahori map, Fukahori Honmura/Saonouramura” 1861)

The Fukahori family who served as a chief retainer of the Saga clan, was in charge of the coastal defense of Nagasaki since Fukahori Territory is located near the entrance of Nagasaki Harbor.

(Courtesy of the Nagasaki Museum of History and Culture)

Orange line : Saruku basic route (walking course)

Purple line : A route with nice views

Blue line : A route for experiencing nature and the fishing harbor

Blue and red icons : Toilet

① ~ ⑪ : Historic Sites in Fukahori

Green house icon : Shelter

Green person icon : Emergency evacuation location